Wheeler Reef is one of the premier dive sites in the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park, with a small white sand cay and with areas suited to snorkeling, as well as deep bommies and swim throughs to excite the more experienced diver.

The Yongala Wreck, is situated in the World Heritage Great Barrier Reef Marine Park and is protected under the Historical Shipwrecks Act (1976).

The artefacts, marine life and variety of corals that cover the wreck are spectacular. The S.S. Yongala sank during a cyclone in 1911 with the loss of all 122 people on board. Due to its remote location, the wreck was not dived until 1958, remaining mostly untouched and allowing it to become a magnificent artificial reef.

The wreck begins at 14m below the surface and extends to 28m. As it is the only reef structure in the area, the marine life gathers at the wreck. Often seen are groupers, eagle rays, turtles, giant trevally, maori wrasse, bull sharks and thousands of tropical fish. During summer the occasional whale shark and manta ray, and in the cooler months humpback whales, make it a dive you'll never forget.

Breathtaking, exhilarating and unforgettable!
